9. Courses Offered by the GSPH See Appendix.

Notes about MPH Courses:

- Decision to allow enrollment into a course is at the discretion of the instructor; class capacity, fulfillment of prerequisites (at St. Luke's or elsewhere), and other possible circumstances will be considered.
- There is no upper limit to the number of credits that can be earned as a non-degree student.
- If a student enrolls in the MPH program of St. Luke's International University after earning the credits as a non-degree student, up to 10 credits earned at St. Luke's MPH program may be counted towards the MPH degree requirements according to the St. Luke's International University Graduate School of Public Health School Regulations.
- If three years or longer have passed since the above credits were earned, the instructor in charge of the course will determine whether the credits can be recognized.

Notes about Doctoral Courses:

- Decision to allow enrollment into a course is at the discretion of the instructor; class capacity, fulfillment of prerequisites (at St. Luke's or elsewhere), and other possible circumstances will be considered.
- There is no upper limit to the number of credits that can be earned as a non-degree student.
